

rinket

Stocking of Ever Present Candy

This leather stocking is filled with 1d12 candies of the following kind: (roll d4 or choose)

- 1 - Candied Coffee Beans
- 2 - Crystallized Fruit
- 3 - Spun Sugar Creams
- 4 - Maple Hard Candy

When all candy has been consumed, the next morning the stocking refills with 1d12 of the candy again.

rinket

Copper Mug of Warm Spirits

This tarnished copper mug is enchanted, and when boiling water is poured into it the liquid becomes a pleasantly spiced alcoholic elder drink that spreads comfort throughout the imbiber's body.

rinket

Silver Chest of Security

This small wooden chest is painted silver and green. It is padded on the inside with red velvet, and has a small silver key.

It is magically protected, and can only ever be opened with the key unless someone uses powerful dispelling magic on the chest before trying to break into it.

rinket

Flute of Ivy

This tiny silver flute is decorated with engravings in the shape of ivy plants all across its surface. When played, the sounds it makes are identical to that of winter birdsong.

Whenever the flute is played, the birdsong it produces is indistinguishable from real bird sounds. It might attract other birds, or easily fool those not seeing the player using the flute.

rinket

Clockwork Shrush

This small metallic mechanical bird can be wound up using a key. Once it is wound up, it'll flap its wings and emit a high-pitched squeaking sound similar to birdsong. It will do these things intermittently for one minute before needing to be wound up again.

rinket

Little Solly Man

This little wooden man looks like a bearded elder with a bushy beard and a crown of holly. It is smiling jovially. It is considered a good luck charm among woodpeople.

If carried by someone of a good or neutral alignment, the carrier often has pleasant dreams. If the carrier is of an evil alignment, the carrier is bothered by bad dreams.

rinket

Silvered Holly Leaf

This small holly leaf has been preserved and gilded in silver. When sat flat on still water, it will point towards the north unless very powerful magic is present within a mile radius of the leaf. If such magic is present, the leaf will instead point towards the source.

Gift

Wintertop Bog

This thick log has the look of a well seasoned piece of firewood. Carved into the raw wood are shapes of evergreen trees.

When fire is touched to this log, it immediately bursts into merrily crackling flame under any circumstance barring complete immersion in water. What is more, the log itself is never spent. The flame lasts one hour, but may be used to set other wood on fire. The log can only be set aflame once per day.

rinket

Bracelet of Merry Bells

This leather bracelet is adorned with small gold and silver bells that jingle pleasantly as you walk. Those that hear the bells might find their spirits lifted. The bells cannot be heard by those of an Evil alignment.

rinket

Woodswanderer Cap

This woolen cap is a shapeless mass marked by countless patches and stitches.

If worn while traveling in the woods, the wearer can intuit the nearest man-made shelter (such as a loggers cottage) within a five mile radius.

